FIGHT BACK. JOIN GMB.

Seven years into the public sector pay squeeze and our worst fears have been realised.

Real terms cuts to public sector pay aren't just failing the workers. They're failing everyone who relies on our vital public services.

The pay cap and funding cuts have created a recruitment and retention crisis. We all end up paying more in the end.

Ministers like to talk about pay 'restraint' – as if George Osborne had to be held back from properly paying our nurses, teaching assistants and refuse workers. Let's call the policy what it really is – a deep cut to public sector workers' quality of living.

The financial crash wasn't caused by teaching assistants, council officers or hospital porters. It's outrageous that they are still expected to pay the price for the banking crisis over a decade later.

The policy has already cost vital public servants thousands of pounds in lost earnings. Enough is enough.

Theresa May and Philip Hammond now have a chance to break with the failed policies of their predecessors, and make sure that helping those 'just about managing' actually means something to the UK's five million strong army of public sector workers.

This isn't just in our members' best interests. It's in the best interests of the country as a whole.

The UK's public services keep the country on the road. Public sector workers already do more than anyone could reasonably ask.

That's why GMB stands with them, and it is why we will not rest until we have secured the decent pay deals our members need and deserve.

And the more of us there are, the stronger we become.

Help us stop the pay pinch by joining now.
