In most workplaces the GMB has a designated GMB Workplace/Rep Organiser. Where there is not a GMB Workplace Organiser the backup comes from the local GMB Branch/Office. The GMB is running a national campaign to ensure each Workplace has a Rep/Organiser.

THE ROLE OF A GMB WORKPLACE ORGANISER

The GMB union has over 20,000 trained Workplace Organisers. Members who voluntarily give their time to organise, negotiate, advise and represent work colleagues who are GMB members.

The GMB Workplace Organiser role includes:

Building GMB Strength by organising all non trade union members into the GMB.

- Communicate and inform members on what is happening locally in their workplace and what GMB initiatives and campaigns are taking place.
- Advise GMB members when members need specific guidance on how to raise particular issues of concerns.
- Represent members' interests at a disciplinary, grievance or on matters that affect the membership collectively.
- Solving problems in the workplace by promoting fairness and dignity at work. Assess any health and safety problems.

GMB Workplace Organisers are not on their own. In the GMB there is a network of full time GMB Organisers and specialists who are experts in the world of work.

All GMB Workplace Organisers are provided a wide range of training courses so not only are you organising and representing members you are also building your own skills which are vital in any workplace. Skills, that are transferable into your daily life. Skills, which immensely build your confidence.
